

POLITICAL SCIENCE AS A DISCIPLINE

Preamble

Political Science is a branch of social science that deals with the theory and practice and the description and analysis of political systems and political behavior. Political science has several subfields, including: international relations, political theory, public policy, public administration, national politics, comparative politics and a host of related fields.

The study of Political Science can illuminate an important dimension of human experience and makes graduates better prepared for intelligent participation in the political community. The study of politics can provide a useful background for work in government organizations of all kinds (administrative and research positions); educational institutions (Schools, colleges, and universities); political organizations (Parties, movements, groups); and the media. It provides a good foundation for further study in law, international relations, public administration, community planning, urban studies, environmental studies and the like.

POLITICAL SCIENCE

Program Objectives in Political Science

- To understand the importance of concepts in Political Science.
- To familiarize the students with the basic ideas thoughts and theories in Political Science.
- To help them to understand and make distinction among Political Theory, Political Philosophy and Political Science and help them to understand the importance of these in the national and global contexts.
- To help them to understand the emergence and growth of modern States and give them an idea of their functioning and relate them to the political realities.
