Any suggestions:

- The syllabus must include some concepts related on Research methodology and emerging areas of research in the fields of organic and inorganic chemistry.

- The computational Chemistry syllabus needs to be modified more by including advanced software used in Research methodology and Literature reviews rather than the Theoretical concepts. Especially AI-related software needs to be made familiarized with.
- Try bring the internship/Project reports in article format and try to communicate with the publishers which can help the students to understand more about Research Publications and Scientific writing, further which can help them to write research proposals.
- More focus on the national-level competitive exams in chemistry and other civil servants' exams which include Chemistry and Biology as the Core subjects.
- Internship allotments must be made based on the future interest/goal/plan of the student in industry or teaching or research than their performance in the semester examinations.
- The current syllabus is competent enough outside campus; however, the research methodology concepts must be included in the curriculum in turn it can help the students to develop research Interests and understand its Ethics.
