Principal's Desk

The economy and society are recovering from the covid-19 pandemic and its variants. The positive dimension is that institutions and commercial establishments have started functioning with covid-19 precautionary procedures. In the education field, regular classes have been started in a full swing and the lecturers are completely involved in the teaching and evaluation process. There is mutual pressure on both the teachers and taught to complete the syllabus and the students to prepare for the internal as well as term-end examinations.

At this juncture, time management is both critical and crucial for both the teachers and the taught to complete their tasks and responsibilities to fulfil their academic aspirations.
