“Strive not to be a success, but rather to be of value” – Albert Einstein

In the world of competition, all wanted to be successful. While chasing to be successful, people indulge in unfair practices to gain importance or creating an image of inevitability. They mask their vision in the ego wrapper and indulge in gossiping to spreading message through the grapewine. These hurts the innocent and genuine feelings of the performers.

It happens in both private sector and public sector corporate offices and also in educational institutions like universities and colleges.

Because of few such elements, the academic ambience is affected. Recently PUC results were announced and the newspaper reported the suicide cases of low performers. May be due to peer pressure, parents higher expectations and may be comments by his friends. Suicide is not a solution. By open ended communication with the affected parties issues can be resolved. Then the life goal is not to be successful but of value to the people in and around and to the institution.

Thus it is adding values to life to be of value to others.

Dr. P.N. Udayachandra
